You have to remove the valve cover and cams and cam chain idler assembly (the guide in the middle of the head on top). Take a wire and wire up your old chain so you don't lose it into the engine. Cut it with a cut off wheel or buy a chain breaker tool but it needs to come apart. Buy a 124 link w/master link from Z1Enterprises. Use the master link to fasten the new chain to the old and drag it ...

If the crank turns okay, keep turning a full 360 degrees then recheck the cam timing. At the crank, the timing mark is a small "t" to the left of the 1-4 mark. If the crank doesn't turn with reasonable effort, STOP. Something is jammed. A likely candidate is the cam chain, having slipped off the teeth on the crankshaft. Back to square one, remove the cam guide sprocket, cam caps and cams ...
